Political Science and International Relations majors may complete 21 credits (7 courses) of POL electives or declare an approved specialization in International Relations or Law and Policy. Students will need to complete the specific courses outlined for those specializations as outlined in the University Catalog.

Marymount University recommends that students complete at least one full semester abroad for the Politics major / International Studies minor. Students interested in completing an internship in international affairs should meet with a faculty advisor early in their time at Marymount, since some of those positions require advanced planning due to background checks.
